Introducing a new feature for the IJGO: Contemporary Issues in Women's Health

This is the inauguration of a new section of the International Journal of Gynecology and Obstetrics entitled 'Contemporary Issues in Obstetrics and Gynecology'. As the title indicates, it is our intention to bring contemporary women's health issues to our international readership, and often we will highlight changing opinions as well as differences of opinion on the topics addressed. We expect these brief reports will be topical 'highlights' from the important and complex intersections of medical, biobehavioral, social and political problems that we know frequent our quest for the best reproductive and primary health care for women. The editors solicit 'reporters' and 'correspondents' from throughout the world. Please feel free to email Dr. Timothy Johnson at trbj@umich.edu or Prof. S. Arulkumaran at s.arulkumaran@sghms.ac.uk if you have reports or stories that you would like to have included. We would be happy to attribute those reporters and correspondents who give permission in their transmittal. Otherwise, we will share those reports that we think are of the greatest interest to our readership without attribution.

As you can see from our first selections, in addition to a summary of the pertinent details, we will also try to give accurate, up to date websites, including journal and publication websites and email addresses, so that those interested can obtain more details in the most contemporary fashion. We hope this series will be of interest to the readers of the International Journal of Gynecology and Obstetrics and will advance its mission of improving health and status of women throughout the world.
