

ADVANCED MATERIALS

SUPEROLEOPHOBIC SURFACES

Hierarchically structured, superoleophobic surfaces displaying one of the lowest contact angle hysteresis ever reported are developed by Anish Tuteja and co-workers on page 5838. These surfaces allow droplets of the extremely low surface tension liquid, n-heptane, to bounce and roll off at tilt angles  $\leq 2^\circ$ .

