

Nashville's Legacy

Nashville (1975) is the Altman film that best symbolizes his deft use of a large ensemble cast. The relationships between characters are complex, yet resoundingly real, and their large number make it a grand mural of country music, rather than a small snapshot. The film's role as a landmark in American Film was marked 25 years later by an article accompanied by a photograph of the reunited cast in Premiere magazine.

Group photograph of the entire 24-actor ensemble cast of Nashville (1975) and accompanying outtake featuring Robert Altman (white t-shirt). The photograph emphasizes that all of the 24 actors in the film had real roles with well-developed characters in this sprawling drama set against the backdrop of an impending political rally. The film was shot over eight weeks on location in Nashville.

Candid photograph of Robert Altman with cast of Nashville. From "Altman Calendar," March.

IT HAPPENED IN NASHVILLE

Outtakes from Premiere magazine's 25th anniversary Nashville photo shoot featuring Altman and ten members of the original cast. That such recognition continued so long after its initial release is only further testament to the film's enduring impact on the industry and medium.

PREMIERE
THE MONTHLY MAGAZINE

June 2, 2000

Robert Altman
Sankofka Productions
3000 Olympic Blvd.
Building 3, Suite 1148
Santa Monica, CA 90404

Dear Bob,

Enclosed please find our July issue. The Nashville oral history begins on p. 88. I hope it will be as fascinating and fun for you to read as it was for me to write.

I'd like to reiterate how much it meant to the magazine, and to me personally, for you to devote so much time to interviews and our photo shoot. Because Nashville is a film I love so deeply, I was very moved by the access you gave me into the making of the movie.

It is not often that we at Premiere—or I as a writer—have the opportunity to be a part of something so historic. But in this instance, we are all very grateful of this story and hope you will be as well.

We will be posting an extended version of the story—as you can imagine, there is plenty of material I couldn't use—on our website (www.premiere.com).

Thank you again.

Sincerely,
Alex Lewin

© 2000 Simon & Schuster Inc. 1000 17th Ave. New York, NY 10037 • TEL: (212) 851-2000 • FAX: (212) 851-2002

Alex Lewin, typed letter to Robert Altman, June 2, 2000. The author of the article in Premiere celebrating Nashville's 25th anniversary, Alex Lewin, wrote a letter to Altman thanking him for the time and effort he devoted to both the photo shoot and interviews.

6-17-75
W JUN 19 1975

Dear Bob;

I saw NASHVILLE at your theatre the other night. Now I can take things when they are good — but brilliant?? Then I get sick.

If I were you now, they'd have to lock me up somewhere. Jesus Christ are you terrific!

As Always
Sidney

Sidney Lumet, handwritten note to Robert Altman, June 17, 1975.
Dear Bob, I saw NASHVILLE at your theatre the other night. Now I can take things when they are good — but brilliant?? Then I get sick. If I were you now, they'd have to lock me up somewhere. Jesus Christ are you terrific. As Always, Sidney

RICHARD NIXON
March 15, 1983
26 FEDERAL PLAZA
NEW YORK CITY

Mr. Altman

In talking with my daughter Julie recently, she told me that one of her all time favorite movies was your "Nashville".

I did not get to see it and wondered if by chance it has been or will be released in a cassette. Don't go to too much trouble but if your secretary could check it out, I would appreciate it.

With warm regards,
Sincerely,
Richard Nixon

Mr. Robert B. Altman
c/o Elaine Badish
1861 South Bundy Drive
Los Angeles, California 90025

©1983 CENTRAL PARK SOUTH • SUITE 4B • NEW YORK • 10019 • (212) 682-2970

Richard Nixon, typed note to Robert Altman, March 15, 1983. Appreciation of Nashville was far-reaching, at times leading to some unique correspondence. In 1983 — before the advent of the home theater — former president Richard Nixon sent a note to Altman requesting a copy of his daughter's favorite film.