Why is a student-led conference needed?

LIS students need...
- an introduction to professional conferences during graduate school
- experience giving presentations to a professional audience
- space to informally discuss ideas, outside of the classroom
- to learn how to network in a low-stakes yet professional-like environment
- an opportunity to engage in service work

- Add presentation to their CVs

As attendees
- Choose among conference sessions
- See a model for professional presentations
- Gather ideas for their own presentations and projects
- Network with professional librarians
- Interact with professional organizations

As members of the Planning Committee
- Develop valuable skills: marketing, fundraising, proposal evaluation, event planning, project management, and service work

QuasiCon promotes...

Diversity
- Attendees participate in the scholarly conversation, one of the frames in the ACRL Framework for Information Literacy in Higher Education.

Information literacy
- Attendees explore online resources during a presentation of data visualization and literacy

Inclusion
- QuasiCon is free and open to the public. Held at UMSI, the conference is accessible to all UMSI students.

Lessons learned
- Create a diverse Planning Committee. Each member brings unique strengths, experiences, and professional network
- Send targeted requests, which yield more responses than blanket email requests
- Provide food for attendees, including those with dietary restrictions. Ending the day with cake has been a hit!
- Pick swag that adds value to the conference
- Build a support network
- Assess the impact of the conference by gathering attendee feedback
- Collect suggestions for improvement from the Planning Committee members
