The process of peer review is a cornerstone of current scientific publishing practice. The existence of JGR-SP as a high-quality scientific journal is only possible because of the dedication, expertise, and efforts provided by our reviewers. The time spent by reviewers is indispensable in maintaining the high scientific standards of our journal. The Editors of the Journal of Geophysical Research Space Physics want to thank unreservedly everyone who voluntarily devoted their time to the review process for the journal in calendar year 2021.

We want to express our indebtedness to every one of the 1,247 reviewers who produced 3,667 peer reviews for the journal last year. Individuals in italics provided three or more reviews for JGR: Space Physics during the year.
