What’s a research impact librarian?

I empower scholars to create the conditions under which they can establish:

- A strong public identity
- An account of their contributions to the scholarly enterprise
- A persuasive body of evidence for the impact of their work
For today:

- What’s special about scholarly journals (and why should you care)?
- When & why would you want to identify a particular journal, or compare one to another?
- Lenses for evaluating journals
- What next?
What’s special about scholarly journals?
PHILOSOPHICAL
TRANSACTIONS:
GIVING SOME

WORLD

Vol I.
For Anno 1665, and 1666.

In the SAVOT,
Printed by T. N. for John Martyn at the Bell, a little without Temple-Bar, and James Allestry in Duck-Lane;
Printers to the Royal Society.

- Current model has roots in the 17th century
- Continuing, public record of scholarly exchange
- Peer review
- Growing network of citations
- 10’s of thousands of journals actively publishing today

When & why would you want to find, select, or compare journals?
When & Why?

- I have an assignment!
When & Why?

- I have an assignment!
- I found an article I’m interested in & want to evaluate its source.
- I want to keep up with trends in my field. Should I be subscribing to/reading this?
- I need to identify the best possible venue to publish my work.
- I am looking for a variety of readings for a class I’m teaching.
- I am applying for promotion / tenure / a job / a fellowship / a grant / a postdoc and I need to contextualize my work for others who don’t know it.
When you know why, you can get to what:

- Validity
- Reliability
- Rigor
- Exclusivity
- Peer review process
- Timeliness
- Innovation
- Scope & content
- Diversity & representation
- Prestige
- Accessibility/availability
- Copyright practices
- Affiliation with individuals or organizations I trust
- ...etc.
Lenses for evaluating journals
Example: Journal Impact Factor (JIF)
- # of citations in the current year / # of items published in the two prior years
- Intended to guide library collections decisions; now often misused as a proxy for quality
- Explore the JIF (and other metrics): Journal Citation Reports
- San Francisco Declaration on Research Assessment
Editorial

- Editor-in-Chief and Editorial board
- Scope & Content
- Peer review process
- Acceptance rate
- Learn more: Platform for Responsible Editorial Policies
Affiliations and Visibility

- Associated with a society, conference, or organization?
- Example: PMLA website
- Abstracting & Indexing: Ulrichsweb Global Serials Directory
Publisher Policies & Practices

- Society, Academic, Commercial, Library?
- Copyright policies, Author agreement, deposit rights
- Sherpa Romeo directory of publisher policies
- Committee on Publication Ethics (COPE) Guidelines
- U-M Copyright Office Author’s Addenda
This seems like a lot to think about.
I agree. Let’s talk more later.
