Hurrah!

We had a very good year in 1984. Some comments about the results later in this report, but for the moment:

| | | |
|---|----------------|-------------|
| Total dollars received | $1,481,961.58 | (up 5.83%) |
| Total gifts | 7,977 | (up 9.0%) |
| Total alumni donors | 6,191 | (up 1.1%) |
| Percent of alumni participation | 43.4% | (down 0.6%) |

It will be hard to top these impressive figures in 1985, but we look forward to the challenge. With your help we shall do it.

Law School Fund and The Campaign for Michigan

I think it is time, although the Campaign is still gathering momentum at a measured pace, to call your attention to the Campaign for Michigan, and to explain the relationship between the Law School's participation in that undertaking and our Law School Fund that most of you know so well.

Since we recently detailed the history of the Fund in this report I shall remind you only that the Fund started in 1961 and during 1985 we shall conduct its twenty-fifth annual campaign. As shown on graphs near the center of this report, growth in both dollars and participants has been steady.

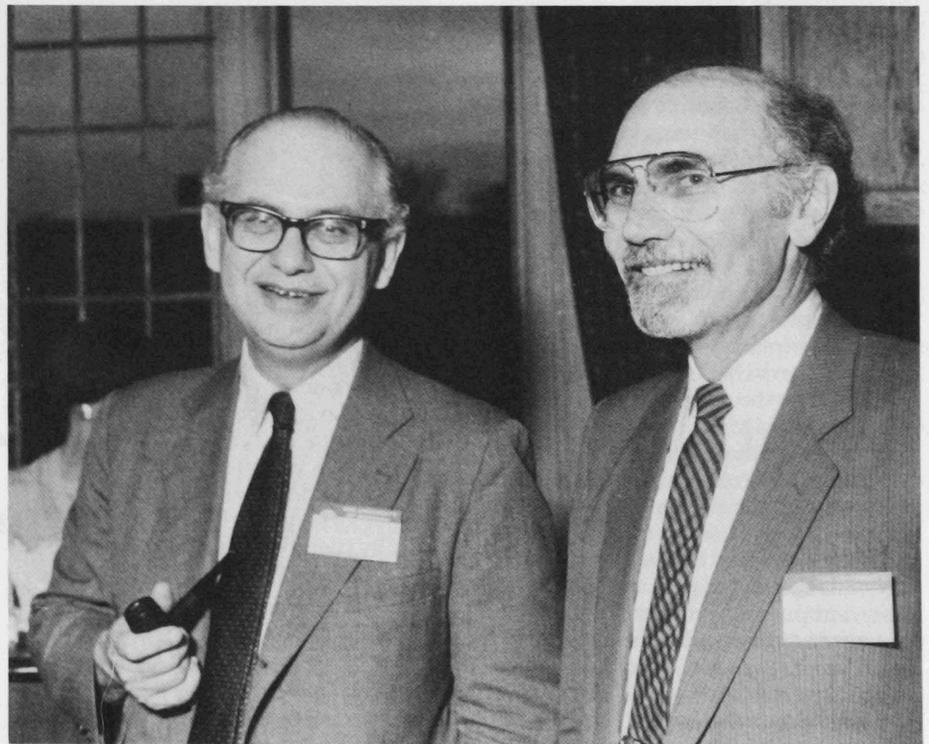

The Law School Fund has been a marvelous demonstration of the importance and effectiveness of alumni support and involvement. Although the school has necessarily provided the logistical support (brochures, printing of letters, accepting and receipting for gifts, etc.) and continuity, the leadership, and virtually all of the "fund raising" has been the work of alumni volunteers—the national officers and committee members, regional and state chairpersons, local solicitors, and the class representatives. And the results, which we proudly report have come almost entirely from or through you.

The purpose of the fund continues as it began—to provide the extras of excellence. Financial support for the Law School has long been a partnership. The Michigan legislature (and taxpayers) through appropriations to the University, and University administrators, from the appropriations and other monies available to them, have provided the basis for a good law school. But so many of the things that distinguish Michigan from other good law schools, and assure its position as one of the world leaders in legal education, have resulted from generous alumni support.

Visibly obvious, of course, are the magnificent buildings that constitute the Law Quadrangle. These provide a working and living environment second to none. Less obvious, but equally important have been the resources to build and maintain one of the world's best research libraries providing our students, faculty, and visiting scholars with an exceptional working tool; scholarship and loan funds that have permitted Michigan to attract and accept the very best students regardless of their financial means; support for three top-flight student publications which provide outlets for student research and writing, as well as for members of the bar and academicians; funds for released time to faculty for major research projects; the ability to bring distinguished visitors to the campus; support for innovative practice course and clinical law programs; and much, much more.

Sometimes the "extras" are relatively unglamorous, but they are essential to the operation of the school in its leadership position. These may include additional secretarial assistance, staff for the library, office equipment, repairs and improvements to some of the facilities; personnel and equipment for the placement and admissions offices; seed money for our all-alumni spring experience—the Law Alumni Reunion and Law Forum, etc.

Terry Sandalow and Sid Kleinman

The Law School Fund, a cash on the barrelhead operation, has been an important source for all of these extras, and its importance in view of relatively less support from the state legislature continues to increase. Thus, when you are told that your dollars are important to the strength and excellence of your school, and you are asked to contribute to the current Law School Fund you can be certain that your help is needed and will be well used to continue providing the extras of excellence.

At the same time the University and the Law School realize that a major institution cannot plan intelligently and operate efficiently on a purely short-term cash basis, and the tremendous cost of new physical facilities and modernization of existing buildings are too great to be absorbed within the annual budget for operations. Thus in October 1983 the University announced to the public a University-wide capital campaign—The Campaign for Michigan—to run for four years through 1987. The goal of this campaign is to increase the University's endowment at least $80 million, plus a similar sum for priority construction and renovation projects throughout the University.

The Law School is, of course, actively involved in this major campaign. We have some specific needs on which I shall expand in a moment, but before I do that I want to underscore that we shall continue to conduct the annual Law School Fund campaigns much as we have with no lessening of intensity or need. In short, there are two distinct campaigns. Our fondest hope is that you will support both.

In spite of our own successful drive for major commitments between 1973 and 1979, we do have some unmet needs within the purposes of the Campaign for Michigan. I shall list a few, and I expect you can think of others.

In the area of construction and renovation several of our classrooms need updating. Room 116 in Hutchins Hall is an example of what can be done. Seminars with small groups have become an important part of our teaching, but our rooms for seminars, all planned more than 50 years ago, are pretty bad and could be greatly improved. Room 100 in Hutchins Hall is too large to be a useful classroom, and with fixed benches and chairs not a good place for speeches, case club arguments, audience participation programs, etc., but it could be transformed into a fine auditorium for about $500,000. When the new underground addition to the library was built, 5,000 square feet of floor space on each of three levels was left unfinished. Soon we shall need to complete those areas.

Sharyl and Alan Ackerman

Inflation has already weakened our endowed accounts for such things as financial aid for students, an assured source of funds for library acquisitions, and for the general needs of the school in the years ahead. We need new funds for new accounts or for addition to the existing ones for these and other purposes. No law school without an outstanding faculty can become or remain a leader. It is imperative that we have additional endowments for chairs and professorships to retain the outstanding faculty members that we have, and to attract others with similar credentials.

If you have questions about any of this, please call or write.

Fan Mail—Where Do the Dollars Go?

After our report of the 1983 Fund an alumnus noted that even after eliminating the gifts that at the request of the donors were added to the endowed and other permanent accounts, and not counting the otherwise available gifts to specific uses, we still showed a balance of $800,000 as available and unrestricted in the Law School Fund account. What, he asked, did we do with that?

No two years are alike, of course, and there are problems in reporting for even a single year. But his was a legitimate question, and I would like to share with you a somewhat shortened version of my reply. With the exception of the expenses directly associated with the Law School Fund office, this is not a "working account," so in order to spend this money the dean must transfer money from the Fund account into the several "working" accounts. Since these accounts usually have other sources of income, it is virtually impossible to trace the Law School Fund money beyond this transfer. With this caveat I shall proceed.

We used about $200,000 to run the Law School Fund office. This was just a little over 14% of our total collection. Most of these expenditures are related to fund raising, but this office also handles a number of other alumni related activities not a part of fund raising, and maintains the alumni address list for the entire Law School community, and in many ways for various parts of the University. We would be happier if we could spend less and still do a good job, but even now our expenses compare favorably with other fund raising organizations, academic and non-academic.

Nearly $100,000 was used to supplement the other money available to the Law School librarian. The cost of printed materials and microforms has sky-rocketed. And, today it is necessary for the library to subscribe to LEXIS and to WESTLAW and to be connected with computer terminals to a variety of other libraries.

Speaking of computers, a very major expenditure of the Law School Fund money last year was to help with the cost of providing most of the professors with personal computers and in many cases word processors, and often their secretaries with similar equipment. Through these computers many of the professors have a direct line into LEXIS and WESTLAW, and, for all I know, into other computer networks. I am not an expert in the field but we expect these devices to speed up and improve the faculty research efforts.

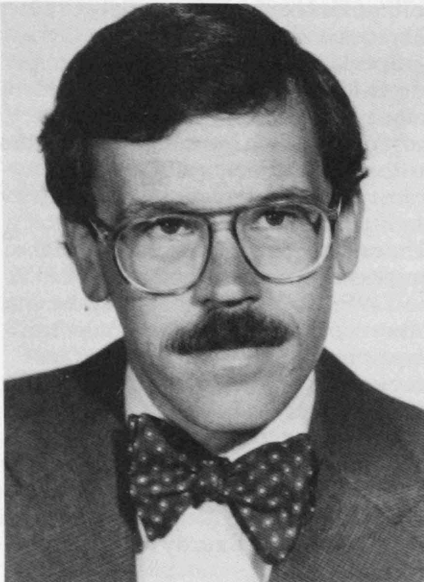

Money was, of course, transferred into student financial aid accounts. This was in addition to a very large portion of the so-called "designated" gifts received in 1983 that went directly to those accounts.

Smaller sums were used to support some student activities such as Senior Day, orientation activities for new students, expenses for speakers invited through the Student Senate's speaker's bureau, the Journal of Law Reform and the Michigan Yearbook of International Law; some additional money was used for the school's admissions programs, and to continue the Law School alumni survey. Money was also transferred to the Law School payroll account for some additional secretarial help.

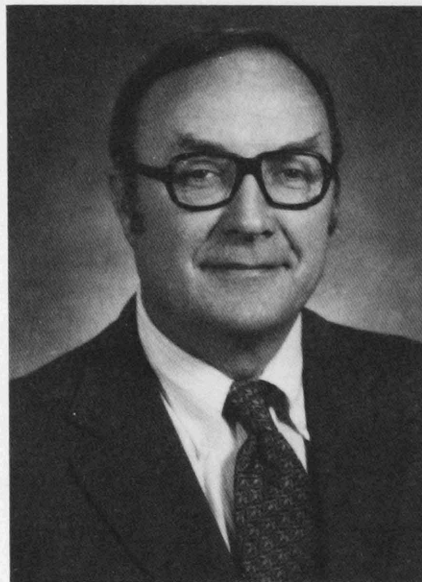

Finally, a substantial sum was transferred to an account called Law School Special Activities. In a sense this can be used for almost any legitimate expense, but through this account we provided the money for the annual meetings of the Committee of Visitors, paid for the writing, printing and mailing of Law Quadrangle Notes, financed some alumni activities such as expenses to send speakers from here to alumni gatherings in major centers of the country and to several state bar meetings, and paid part of the cost of a reception during the annual meeting of the ABA. For the last several years we have had an annual Law School Alumni Reunion and Law Forum, to which all alumni are invited. We charge for some parts of this affair, but through Special Activities we underwrite some of the "extra" expenses such as travel for speakers who participate in the "forum" part of the affair.

And really last, but not necessarily least, there was a little carryover.

The James B. Angell Society

A very special group indeed! It honors those who have given the University $1 million or have made a commitment of $1.5 million as a deferred gift. Among those so honored are several Law School alumni and the sister of one of them who have made such gifts to the University. In each case all or a major portion of the gift was for the benefit of the Law School.

They are:

Joseph H. Parsons

Michigan Benefactors

This is a personal recognition awarded those individuals, corporations, or foundations who by their major gifts to The University of Michigan permit the institution to implement facilities, programs, and services that enable it to maintain leadership among the universities of the world.

Michigan Benefactors were first designated as such in 1974. Among those who have been so honored are the following members of the "Law School Family," who either attended the Law School or who are spouses of alumni:

The Presidents Club

The University of Michigan Presidents Club is one of the most respected organizations of its type in the country. No other public university, and few, if any, private universities or colleges have the allegiance and backing of such a large number of people who support their institution in one of the most effective ways—with dollars.

The Presidents Club has been enthusiastically supported by many Law School alumni and a list of the Law members through January 31, 1985 follows. Law membership increased in 1984 from 584 to 616.

Do you work for a company or a law firm that has a matching gift program? If you do, your gift to the Law School Fund can usually be matched dollar-for-dollar by your company. All you need to do is obtain a matching gift form from your employer, fill it out, and send it to us with your donation to the Law School Fund. It will be processed here, returned to your employer, and your gift will become doubly valuable.
