

Text snippets without Intrinsically Emotional Content (IEC)

EML	¬EML
A daily snack for many American children, ninety-nine percent of the world's commercially exported bananas are Cavendishes. The household Cavendish bananas don't have disgusting seeds, are packed with memories of childhood nostalgia in every bite, and can be easily shipped to your local supermarket. However, the bananas are on the brink of utter destruction as the Panama fungal disease stands menacingly over future crops. While currently exporters ship other varieties of bananas to the U.S., like plantains, those bananas are like eating shriveling spinach compared to a juicy rack of home-cooked bacon and obviously don't sell as well as Cavendish bananas. While this could change soon, your child's lunch may never be the same again. If we are to stop bananas from becoming folktale, the search for alternatives to Cavendish bananas or disease-resistant varieties must succeed.	A daily snack for many American children, ninety-nine percent of the world's commercially exported bananas are Cavendishes. The household Cavendish bananas don't have seeds, have a consistently delicious taste, and can be easily shipped to your local supermarket. However, the bananas are in danger as the Panama fungal disease threatens future crops. While currently exporters ship other varieties of bananas to the U.S., like plantains, those bananas don't sell as well as Cavendish bananas. This could change soon. If we are to stop the disappearance of bananas, the search for alternatives to Cavendish bananas or disease-resistant varieties will need to succeed.
Imagine waking up in the morning, the sun is beaming through the window, the birds are softly chirping, it's a beautiful morning --but you're head is a foggy mess of exhaustion. If you want a clear-headed experience, then you should buy whole bean coffee and grind your beans as close to the brew time as possible. Use a burr or mill grinder over other grinders because they grind the coffee to a perfectly consistent size. Controlling the size of the grind can radically transform your coffee from a morning-ruining pot of brown water into an enlightening experience of delightful taste. If your coffee tastes bitter, it may be over-extracted, or ground too fine. On the other hand, if your coffee tastes like hot water, it may be under-extracted, meaning your grind is too coarse and you might as well	If you like wakeful mornings, buy whole bean coffee and grind your beans as close to the brew time as possible. Use a burr or mill grinder over other grinders because they grind the coffee to a perfectly consistent size. Controlling the size of the grind can transform your coffee from a bland pot of brown water into a delightful one. If your coffee tastes bitter, it may be over-extracted, or ground too fine. On the other hand, if your coffee tastes like hot water, it may be under-extracted, meaning your grind is too coarse. throw the cup out the window.

For the wannabe Zuckerbergs out there, an entrepreneurship conference 'Entrepreneur LIVE' will be held in Silicon Valley next week. Presented by Entrepreneur Asia-Pacific, Entrepreneur LIVE will have many preachers from different industries pitching the prosperity gospel of work and serving the Kool-Aid of the 18 hour work day. Loyal attendees can also pitch their business ideas to the 3-time-divorced executives present at the event.	An entrepreneurship conference 'Entrepreneur LIVE' will be held in Silicon Valley next week. Presented by Entrepreneur Asia-Pacific, Entrepreneur LIVE will have many speakers from different industries pitching a culture of a work-heavy life. Loyal attendees can also pitch their business ideas to the executives present at the event.
The cosmetics industry is a $70 billion-a-year behemoth that peddles asbestos-laced makeups, lotions, and other elixirs to Americans who dream to look as good as face-lifted Barbie girl celebs. House and Senate members have proposed a bill that increases regulations on the chemicals women and children place on the most intimate parts of their bodies. So far this bill has not seen the support it needs to see a vote. Also, The F.D.A. can't ensure the safety of "dolling up" with imported cosmetics, which have doubled in volume in the past decade.	The cosmetics industry is a $70 billion-a-year industry that sells asbestos-laced makeups, lotions, and other products to Americans. House and Senate members have proposed a bill that increases regulations on the cosmetic industry. So far this bill has not seen the support it needs to see a vote. The F.D.A. also can't ensure the safety of imported cosmetics, which have doubled in volume in the past decade.
Imagine having lost a dear loved one of yours, then decades later, discover they have been alive all along and that you could once again be reunited. That is what happened to Janie who, after going through the immense pain and loss of her dad who she thought was dead for three painful decades, learned that he is still very much alive in Lebanon. Janie contacted Ronnie, who told his daughter a distressing fact that he thought no one had wanted him anymore. They were so excited to have found each other, they planned a heartwarming family reunion to celebrate. So after nearly 30 years of the formidable thought that her father has been dead, Janie and other family members traveled from Georgia and Kentucky to be with Ronnie in Tennessee and show him decades of love all at once. The emotional	After going through the loss of her dad who she thought was dead for three decades, Janie learned that he is still very much alive in Lebanon. Janie contacted Ronnie, who told his daughter that he thought no one had wanted him anymore. They were so excited to have found each other, they planned a family reunion to celebrate. So after nearly 30 years of the difficult thought that her father has been dead, Janie and other family members traveled from Georgia and Kentucky to be with Ronnie in Tennessee. The emotional reunion was captured on camera.

reunion was captured on camera like a fairytale come true.
--	--

Text snippets with Intrinsically Emotional Content (IEC)

EML	TEML
The vaccine company Merck is responsible for the tragic deaths of many sweet and unsuspecting American children. One father, named Gary Powell, was swept by a wave of grief when his son's life was taken by Merck's greed. Against all odds Gary now speaks out against Merck's evil, urging parents not to demolish children's immune systems with vaccines and warning them that doing so may lead them to be defenseless against the common flu (which killed his son). With Gary's help, Merck's rule may finally crash down and parents will no longer face the horrific tragedy that Gary went through.	The vaccine company Merck is responsible for the deaths of many American children. Gary, a father who lost his son because of this company, is speaking out about this. Gary is urging parents not to damage children's immune systems with vaccines and warning them that doing so may lead them to be defenseless against the common flu. With Gary's help, Merck may become less popular and parents will no longer go through the experience that Gary went through.
Over the last 10 years, an increasing number of selfie-stick millennial hipsters have popularized sagging-pants rap music videos, face-tattooed celebrities of hip-hop "culture", and who knows what else. However, the more sophisticated folks at the Baltimore Symphony Orchestra have lost $16 million in funding and are considering further paring back their schedule -- a move musicians say will demote the BSO from the last bastion of world-class art to a part-time regional orchestra. Musicians, who had been playing without a contract since Sept. 9, agreed Thursday to a four-month extension of the previous collective bargaining agreement. They did so two days after receiving a seismic offer from management that would fundamentally change the status of the BSO.	Over the last 10 years, an increasing number of millennials have popularized rap music videos, celebrities of hip-hop, and other things. However, the Baltimore Symphony Orchestra have lost $16 million in funding and are considering further paring back their schedule -- a move musicians say will demote the BSO from a world-class symphony to a part-time regional orchestra. Musicians, who had been playing without a contract since Sept. 9, agreed Thursday to a four-month extension of the previous collective bargaining agreement. They did so two days after receiving a seismic offer from management that would fundamentally change the status of the BSO.
In a horrific discovery, the genocide of three newborn puppies have been found at an industrial estate. The once life-giving animals,	The bodies of three newborn puppies have been found at an industrial estate. The once life-giving animals, thought to be Staffies,

thought to be beautiful Staffies, were found lifeless by staff starting work at Dabble Duck Industrial Park in Shildon, County Durham. They were discovered along with a towel and a plastic bag, such an unsavory resting place for angelic creatures to pass. The park's gates are locked overnight, so the RSPCA said the dogs had either been thrown over a wall dead like garbage, or even worse, dumped barely alive and then desperately crawled out in a cruel attempt at survival.	were found by staff starting work at Dabble Duck Industrial Park in Shildon, County Durham. They were discovered along with a towel and a plastic bag in their resting place. The park's gates are locked overnight, so the RSPCA said the dogs had either been thrown over a wall dead or dumped alive and then crawled out.
Cruel violence is an established reality in the capital of the Central American country of El Salvador. The depressing truth is that the district's residents suffer tremendous levels of unemployment and underemployment, crippling poverty, and a state that couldn't give a care in the world about providing adequate services. Gang activity has enslaved the city and ravaged everyday life. The district lives like a hostage under a harrowing system of social dominance enforced by a dreaded gang called MS-13.	Severe violence is a reality in the capital of the Central American country of El Salvador. The district's residents suffer high levels of unemployment and underemployment, poverty, and a lack of access to state services. Gang activity has taken a hold and marks everyday life. The district lives under a system of social control meted by a gang called MS-13.
On Friday, a gunman strapped on a helmet camera, loaded his car with weapons, drove to a mosque in Christchurch, New Zealand, and began shooting at anyone who came into his line of vision. The act of mass terror was broadcast live for the world to watch on social media. A 17-minute video of a portion of the attack, which leapt across the internet faster than social media censors could remove it, is one of the most disturbing, high-definition records of a mass-casualty attack of the digital age -- a first-person-shooter documentation of man's capacity for inhumanity. Some Twitter users described frantically trying to stop videos in their feeds from autoplaying, so as not to be bombarded from around the globe with the recording.	On Friday, a gunman strapped on a helmet camera, loaded his car with weapons, drove to a mosque in Christchurch, New Zealand, and began shooting at anyone he could see. His helmet cam footage was livestreamed on social media. Social media censors were not fast enough to remove a 17-minute video of a portion of the attack before it was widely shared, and it is one of the most violent recordings of a mass-casualty attack to-date. Some Twitter users described being distraught that footage of the attack autoplayed in their Twitter feeds.