Pairs
Faculty and Librarian participants were given an anonymized number based on the order in which they were interviewed (e.g. the first librarian interviewed is L1; the first faculty member interviewed is F1).

The table below displays which faculty and librarians were pairs--that is, they were members of the same institution and were interviewed in order to give their unique and different perspectives of the same institution.

In the raw data, the pairs are denoted by horizontal lines in the document.

Faculty	Librarian
F1	L2
F2	L6
F4	L3
F5	L4

The qualitative interview data is organized first by faculty/librarian pairs, then the single interviewees, which are in chronological order.

Notes

The data were collected in March 2014.

Collected Data Not Included in Publication
The researcher asked participants questions about publishing and scholarly communication as it relates to digital humanities. It became clear that this theme was out of scope for the final publication, and so the data were not included in the final analysis.

Demographic information was not included in the raw data document in order to keep participants anonymous.

Additionally, the raw data don't include a word-for-word transcription of all interviews; rather, the document contains selected transcription and paraphrasing.

Formating
Note that within the raw data, direct quotes from participants are in quotation marks; other data not in quotes are paraphrased by the researcher.
